

Added-value event for independent non-aligned advisers

Sydney, 19 March 2015: Centuria Capital today opened registrations for its “Make it Happen” events scheduled for 6th, 7th and 13th May in Brisbane, Melbourne and Sydney, respectively.

These free half-day events will offer non-aligned, independent advisers the opportunity to earn CPD points and pick up some practical ideas to bolster their business’ marketing as well as to get optimal performance from their teams.

“Non-aligned advisers rarely get the opportunity to gain any skills outside of product and technical education unless they have the time to take extra courses.” said Neil Rogan, General Manager of Centuria’s Investment Bonds Division.

“We count many non-aligned advisers amongst our supporters across both our Property and Investment Bonds Divisions, and we felt that we’d like to fill that need and give them something back - a ‘value-add’ that would be harder to acquire in the normal scheme of things.

Feedback from our advisers is that getting the best from their people and getting enough time to market their businesses are two of their key challenges. So we found some experts and put together an afternoon event to give them practical and immediately implementable tactics that will have a real impact on their businesses.”

“We also see this as an opportunity for these advisers to network and meet other advisers facing the same challenges.” said Jason Huljich, CEO of Centuria Property Funds. “And, if this event proves to be popular, we will hold more of them as long as the non-aligned adviser community benefits from the content in this format.” he added.

Centuria has firmly positioned itself as a Specialist Fund Manager with two core divisions – Property Funds and Investment Bonds. When approached for comment, John McBain, Group CEO said “In our 30 year history, Centuria has established a track record for delivering value for all our stakeholders. Over the years we have transformed our business in response to market times and needs, and we have built strong relationships along the way. We aim to deepen and broaden these relationships over the coming years and to support the adviser market, both through our product offerings as well as by being a voice for the adviser community.”
